

September 21, 2011 – Today, the General Aviation Airport Coalition joined other industry stakeholders in a letter to House and Senate leadership and members of the deficit reduction “Super Committee” strongly opposing the President’s proposal to invoke a $100 per flight user fee on both general and commercial aviation. A copy of that letter follows.

September 21, 2011

The Honorable John Boehner
 Speaker of the House of Representatives
 H-232 The Capitol
 Washington, DC 20515

Dear Speaker Boehner,

As trade and individual membership associations representing virtually all of the aviation community, we are writing to express our strong opposition to any proposed tax – including those taxes disguised as fees - on the aviation industry as part of the Administration’s deficit reduction program. We urge Congress to reject proposed increases in taxes or fees which will stifle the important contribution that aviation makes to our economy through travel and trade and undermine an already fragile economic recovery.

As you may know, the American economy is increasingly dependent upon the rapid transportation of products and people that aviation allows. Aviation plays a major role in driving U.S. growth and investment across the country and around the world. With current concerns about the stability and future of the U.S. economy, we feel it is important to emphasize the vital role that aviation plays in our economy:

- Represents 5.6 percent of Gross Domestic Product;
- Contributes over $1.2 trillion in economic activity; and
- Provides 11 million jobs.

U.S. airlines, general aviation and aviation manufacturing companies and their respective employees face intense competition from the rest of the world. Our policymakers should be focused on increasing U.S. international competitiveness rather than viewing the industry as a national piggybank. If we are to maintain global leadership and increase jobs in this country, we need to stop this mentality and ensure that tax and infrastructure policy are focused on strengthening U.S. aviation leadership and furthering the safety and modernization of the aviation system.

Thank you for your leadership and we will look forward to working with you on this critical issue.
